ARMY OFFICER TO DRILL BOY SCOUTS

Sergeant Woods, Drill Master Detailed to Janesville Militia, Offers to Drill Scouts.

Amid one of the most sincere bursts of enthusiasm that the Y. M. C. A. has witnessed for some time, Sergeant Woods of the 11th Infantry U. S. accepted the Scouts' invitation to drill them one night a week. Sergeant Woods is in the city at this time as drill sergeant for the Second Separate Company; his offer to the boys is welcomed by all connected with the Scout movement, as he is a capable drill master and will be able to round the boys into good shape in short order. The meeting last evening was attended by all the Scout troops already formed and those which are now in process of organization, and by members of the Scout Council. Father Willmann made a brief talk to the boys, in which he told of what was being done for the poor at this time, and requested the services of a limited number of Scouts to assist with the delivery of the presents on the Friday before Christmas. He also asked any scouts who happened to know of needy families to give the names to him for investigation and help. A number of names were turned in at once by the boys who had recognized the sad straits in which some of their schoolmates were.

Another evidence of the great enthusiasm and courage of the Scouts was shown when every Scout present energetically volunteered to march in the street light dedication this evening, no matter how cold it was. Accordingly the organization will take an active part in the celebration this evening, joining in the parade and appearing on the stage.

Although there were a few answers turned in last night with plans for raising funds with which to carry on the year's activities, there were a number of the boys who had not yet finished their schemes. The judging of the plans submitted was postponed until all were in, though a committee was appointed to act as judges and make the first award of five dollars.

Sergeant Durrell, the Y. M. C. A. recruiting sergeant in Janesville at this time to open a recruiting station here, made a short talk to the boys in which he outlined the course through which a recruit is put when he joins the army, and told of the various branches in the regular service.

Sergeant Woods then took the boys over and gave them drill formations and setting up exercises for about half an hour. The Scouts seemed to take to this and greeted Sergeant Woods' offer to drill them with round upon round of cheers.

Philomathian Club: There will be a meeting of the Philomathian club held at the residence of Mrs. W. A. Munn, at 532 South Main street, on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Musical program.

SELL DOLL OUTFITS AT BAPTIST BAZAAR

Booth Conducted By Helpful Circle Offered Attractive Line of Doll Wardrobes—Serve Annual Supper.

A doll's emporium might be the description of the booth at the Baptist church sale on Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Helpful Circle. It is an event looked forward to with much anxiety by worried mothers of innumerable families of dolls. For here the prettiest and latest fashions in doll wardrobes may be obtained: rompers, kimonoes, coats, hats and underwear of the newest styles and most careful fashioning. This year many little novelty articles were added, as several complete baby baskets for dolls, fitted up with miniature outfits, and doll towels, handbags, sweaters and cap, miff sets and the like. Everything was sold very quickly, so that the entire stock was soon disposed of. This booth was in charge of Mrs. L. D. Barker, Mrs. E. R. Lloyd and Mrs. S. C. Baker, with Mrs. E. C. Jones as cashier.

The Kings' Daughters had a very attractive booth in charge of Mrs. A. C. Campbell and Mrs. Woodworth. They report a splendid sale on the towels, dollies, bags and novelty articles with which their booth was stocked. The Philathia Class had a very appetizing array of home-made candy, stuffed dates, etc., for sale, which was readily disposed of. It was in charge of Miss Clara Swann, Miss Belle Campbell and Miss Nellie Wilcox.

Miss Agnes Grant had the Red Cross stamps on sale at a special table, and Miss Caroline Palmer had a very attractive display of crocheted and knitted articles, tatting and bead work for sale.

The supper was served at five tables, placed across the dining room and were decorated with holly and red candles. An elaborate menu had been prepared, in charge of the following committee: Mrs. J. H. Hunt, Mrs. Charles Eilen, Mrs. Will Davis, Mrs. H. J. Miller and Mrs. J. L. Croft, with Mrs. Bowerman as chairman. The supper arrangements were in charge of the Kings' Daughters, and the ladies of that society served as waiters. Plans had been made to serve about 100 people.

JANESVILLE YOUTH TAKES DIPHTHERIA

John L. Groat, Junior at State University, is Removed to Madison Contagious Hospital.

The university clinic yesterday quarantined the rooming house at 710 Langdon street, where John L. Groat, a junior from Janesville, was found suffering from diphtheria.
Groat was removed to the Madison contagious hospital, where his condition is reported as not serious. The rooming house is being fumigated. Cultures of the student roomers were taken and if no germs are found the quarantine will be removed.
Doctors at the clinic did not appear to be alarmed over the situation and said that there was no probability of an epidemic.

MAKE ANOTHER 'GOAT' IN 'BLIND PIG' CASE

Mrs. McCarthy's Right Hand Man Takes Her Place on Warrant Charging Illegal Liquor Sale.

The name of Mrs. Mary McCarthy this morning was scratched from the warrant charging her with selling intoxicating liquors without a license, and that of Frank Vaughn, her right hand man at the Schiltz hotel, Wall and Marion streets, inserted. This was because alleged evidence and the accusations of the police are that Vaughn and not the woman sold the liquor.

Although the "blind-pig" cases, the other one against James J. Kelly of 21 North Academy street, were scheduled for trial this morning at ten o'clock, they were held open until two o'clock this afternoon to permit attorneys for the defendants to investigate the cases.

Agreement has been reached whereby state charges have been lodged against Vaughn and Kelley. As it now stands, Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie will conduct the prosecution.

SIX STATE CITIES ARE NOW PROVIDING FREE DENTAL WORK

Dental Clinics Are Conducted in Madison, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Racine, Wausau and Janesville.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 14.—Free dental clinics for needy school children are now being supplied in six Wisconsin cities. The cities which have free dental clinics are Janesville, Madison, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Racine and Wausau, according to information just received by the municipal reference bureau of the University of Wisconsin extension division.

At Janesville, for the past two seasons a room in the city hall has been donated to the dental clinic, and a dental clinic and appropriate supplies have been made up by the city. The dental clinic is open three hours a day twice a week, and the clinic has been held two days a week during the forty weeks of school. This year they have been extended to the entire year.

In Madison, the dental clinic, organized last March, is financed entirely by the Associated Charities. The clinic board is composed of three dentists and three members of that body, and the medical inspector and school and visiting nurses co-operate in the work. The clinic is open three hours a day twice a week, and the dentists donate their services. Children who are able to pay even 5 or 10 cents are expected to do so.

In Racine, the fund for free dental work is furnished by school children. On the day before Thanksgiving, for several years, the children have made contributions ranging from 5 to 25 cents each. The total fund, which amounts to $400 or $500, supplies free treatment for needy children. About 50 children were treated last year, and the dentists were paid their regular rates. This year they are asking regular prices.

In Wausau, the medical inspectors, when examining the school children, report all cases of defective teeth to the visiting nurse and the school principal. After an investigation of the financial circumstances in the family, such children cannot afford to pay are recommended for free dental work. The dentists not only give free services, but also examine and fit a careful inspection of the teeth and planning of necessary work.

In Oshkosh, the board of education has included in its budget $300 for the equipment of a dental dispensary, and the dentists of the city have offered their services free of charge for a period of one year.

Madison has had a dental clinic since February, 1911. Dentists opened and maintained it until September, 1915, since then it has been controlled and financed by the city. A dentist is regularly employed to give his entire time to the clinic. Only children who parents cannot pay are sent to the clinic. Children who pay small sums are treated at a private university for the cost of the material used. The city dental inspector makes the rounds of the schools once a year. Last year he examined 2,200 school children and found 2,100 had teeth which needed attention. During the year, 1,804 children were treated at the clinic.

"Y" BOYS GIVE CUP TO PAUL RICHARDS

In Appreciation of His Work in Their Department.—Welcome New Boys' Secretary.

In appreciation of the work Paul Richards has done while serving as secretary at the "Y," the boys of the city have given him a beautiful loving cup at the reception tendered him and the incoming secretary, Mr. Feagin, last evening.

About thirty-five members of the "Y" club were present at the reception, and by various means interested in the boys' work at the association. Maurice Russell, president of the "Y" club, told of the activities and ideas of this club and of the boys' work committee at the "Y," described what was expected of the department and what it should mean to the boys.

In his farewell address to the boys as an official of the "Y," Paul Richards urged the boys to lead a clean, straight life. "Start doing it now," he said, "and it will be easy all the rest of your life. If you establish a reputation for being a true gentleman and a true sportsman, that reputation will help you all along the way. Get behind the boys' work and help Mr. Feagin."

J. T. Sheator, principal of the high school, emphasized the cheerful and joyous nature of the work of the "Y," but also showed wherein it had a most serious enterprise, that it had a great purpose in life. Richards then turned the loving cup to Ed. Atwood and Paul Richards in declaring these two young men to be all that a clean, straight life can make of a boy.

Boys' Secretary Feagin then told the boys how glad he was to be in an association where the spirit seemed to be behind the officials as strongly as it is in this one, and hoped that through his work this could even be increased. He outlined the activities of the season and told of what he expected.

pected and hoped to accomplish in the boys' department.

"I don't want to be telling you what not to do," he said. "I'd like to tell you what to do. A start in this direction will be the adoption of the honor system; from now on we are going to have that system in this department. Any boy that steals will be kicked out, and sooner or later he will realize this."

After the talks refreshments were served to junior members of the "Y" and the Boy Scouts, who were assembled at the association building.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Dec. 14.—The first organized protest of American citizens against the deportation of Belgian workmen into Germany will be registered tomorrow night when Ethel Root, James N. Beck and the Rev. Dr. W. T. Manning will address a meeting in Carnegie hall called for the purpose. The time of the action has not been determined but it is expected that a resolution saying the citizens are resentful of the deportation practice will be adopted.

The call for the meeting will be sent out by a committee of citizens who simultaneously requested the state department to let them have all available information on the deportation which the department thought proper to give out. This will be supplemented with information from Minister Haventhur from Belgium and with information gained through unofficial channels.

The United States, officially, has made two representations to Germany regarding the deportations. The first as the ambassadorial representative of Belgium and the second on its own behalf. It was represented to Germany that the deportations were viewed with deep concern here.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette:

I am a farmer living two and one-half miles out on Ruger avenue, known as the middle road, and like to do my trading and marketing in Janesville, but the condition of Ruger avenue from the city limits towards the business section is so bad I would not take a chance of hauling a load of hay or other produce over it. It is, in fact, almost impassable with loose brick, big stones and gravel which has been dumped on but has not been even dragged or rolled. I am not a road builder, but I can beat the work myself. I am surprised the people of Janesville, who are so much interested in good roads in the county, should permit the Ruger avenue condition.

AGAIN FOR $1—WHILE THEY LAST

The cost of Aluminum has doubled since we ordered these lifetime Cookers. At present prices, this offer would be impossible. So, in all probability, after our supply is exhausted, it cannot be made again.

Next week the grocers of this city will once more feature this Quaker Cooker offer. And for the last time, we believe.

We have supplied Cookers now to over 1,000,000 homes. We have supplied these guaranteed Aluminum Cookers for $1 to Quaker Oats users. But this offer ends with our present supply, and probably forever. Unless Aluminum drops 50 per cent, we cannot again offer a Cooker like this for $1.

But next week only we make the offer below. You can get this Cooker for $1, by buying two of our cereals which should be cooked in it.

This offer is made to induce better cooking. To bring you Quaker Oats and Pettijohn's cooked in perfect form, with the flavor kept intact. Our reward will come in your doubled delight in these foods.

We ask the trademarks just to show that you use our cereals. Unless you have the right flakes, right cooking does not help much. But, if you use Quaker Oats and Pettijohn's, this cooker is yours for $1. This is for one week only. Get the packages from any grocer named below.

Send us two trademarks cut from packages of Quaker Oats and one trademark cut from a package of Pettijohn's—the picture of the Quaker on the front of the Quaker Oats package and the picture of the Bear on the front of the Pettijohn's package—or, if you prefer, you may send us five trademarks from Quaker Oats alone. Send us $1 with these trademarks and we will mail the cooker by parcel post. Trademarks must be mailed next week. This offer applies in this vicinity only. TURN BACKWARD ON TIME!

Turn backward, turn backward, oh Time, in thy flow
And make me a boy for an evening
Oh, let me once more for a season enjoy
The days before Christmas when I was a boy!

Ah, fondly I dream of the Yuletides of yore,
Of how, through the closets and each bureau drawer
With dear little sister, in secrecy bound,
I searched for the things that I most always found.

The bright magic lantern, the engine, the sled,
Though hid far away, in the attic or shed,
Though wrapped up in papers and every disguise,
Were hard to conceal from our bright little eyes!

Turn backward, oh Time, till my years are but six,
I'm fain to be up to the mischievous tricks
That I once, before Christmas, did hugely enjoy,
The searching of bureaus when I was a boy!

This Day in History.
Two thousand centuries ago today,
On the son of Wop, and the Chauncey Dewey of his day, remarked at a banquet "I am reminded of an amusing little incident. It seems—"

Do it Early.
"These ear-rings will not do for me!"
Exclaimed her sister, Mary Meers.
"She went to Christmas shop today
And lost one of her ears."

Diary of a Late Christmas Shopper.
Mon.—Fractured three ribs today, but little Eddie shall get his magic lantern. I have employed a retired truck driver to assist me tomorrow and hope to get as far as the toy department. My plan is then to hide under a bed and be prepared to dash forth early in the morning and make my purchase.

How Unkind!
"Oh, my mother
Forbid me to Dance
And I'm glad She's not here for
To see."
Said Miss Ethel Louisa May

Tues.—Seriously injured one or both spines today. One ear seems to be coming loose. The truck driver failed to appear and I foolishly tried to enter a store without capable bodyguards. I have been obliged to employ the most desperate characters to help me tomorrow. Two butchers, a coal man and an egg dealer will be on hand early in the morning.

A Laugh for O. A.
Doc Wiley says that the chemists will banish Old Age and we do hope Old Age has the decency to keep a straight face.

What!
A Miss Blackburne of Chicago has been declared the world's most beautiful woman, but then lots of girls would look it—in Chicago.

Three Drawbacks.
Interesting experiments are being carried on to discover the least amount of food required to sustain a reasonably human being through the day. That one can banquet elegantly three times a day at the very reasonable figure of forty cents is already manifest. This includes such delicacies as cold stew, stewed prunes and bread pudding.

We have only three objections to what has been done thus far, and these are: cold stew, stewed prunes and cold stew.

Oh, Speak!
Ah, Lady, let it be thy choice,
To hear me I implore;
The witchery of thy lovely voice
Pain would I know once more!

Speak, speak, fair one and thus ally
What has been done thus far, and
This anguish and this pain.
Oh, speak, if only thou to say,
"Line's busy, call again!"

That Makes It Easy.
"Some folks are very easily convinced
And that is quite a pretty thing
to see.
"But you'll find," says Deacon Daws,
"very often it's because They know they simply have to be!"

Officials of the U. S. mint recently foregathered to bring an end to the coin shortage, but so far as we have been able to see their efforts were fruitless.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Another star of the legitimate stage who has recently appeared on the screen is Mary Nash, who is seen in "Arms and the Woman," a play of recent release. Miss Nash, who is now starring on Broadway in "The Man Who Came Back," is recognized as being one of the most talented leading women of the day. In "Arms and the Woman" she proves herself to be a screen star of unusual merit. Miss Nash is an Albany girl and though young she has her natural dramatic ability has been ripened by experience in some of the best plays and with some of the best companies of recent years. She was playing woman with Andrew Mark in "Arrah Na Pogue," she played the "girl" in "The Lure" and had the title role in "The Woman." She was in "Truant" and starred in "The Ohio Lure." She made her big hit in "The City." She also played a season in repertoire with Grace George at "The Playhouse" in New York.

THRILLS IN THIS.
A large number of matinee idol type of policemen of the Los Angeles force were recently engaged for several days appearing in scenes depicting the raid of an opium joint in Chinatown for "Pidgin Island." Working in the same scenes were approximately fifty extras representing types of the underworld. The costumes of the extras are said to have been shrouded in the light scenes staged. Three cameras were used during the filming of these scenes. There are a large number of setting parts in this production, said to total thirty-five in all. Harold Lockwood and May Allison are the co-stars, Lester Cuneo the heavy, and Lillian Hayward has an important character part.

CULTIVATES DEVIL SPIRIT.
The press agent writes that Madeline Traversa, a lady of vampirish persuasion, has made a study of the Greek vampires of history, of Jeebel of Cleopatra, of Lucresia Borgia, of Madame Recamier, and of others. She has delved into the origin of the term "vampire," the press agent continues, and thinks there may be something in the superstitious belief of the Greeks that the spirit which dwells in the vampire person is a devil spirit. We'll bet Madeline will be surprised to learn of her studious research when she reads this!

Little Mary Sunshine's new car will be cream and old gold and her chauffeur will be liveried in pure white. The car is to be delivered at the studio within a few days and after that the baby grand will be just as persnickety as any of her older star sisters.

In order that she might understand the part she is supposed to delineate in a coming picture, Nell Craig took lessons from the Chicago police department on "how to be a detective."

ferred by the E. P. Churchill (Inc.) company, that interesting subject of "how moving pictures" are taken and produced is shown in this attraction. A cast of competent youngsters including the following well known players: Olivette Haynes, Sonnie Zerk, Joe Cameron, Emily Ruth Clark, also the E. P. Churchill (Inc.) kiddies (the usual Churchill beauty chorus) chaperoned by Willis Hanson Isaac Chapple, Daniel Langford and Henrietta Tedro have the story well in hand.

The story is of the ever interesting period of life—youth.

The songs are of the whistling-humming kind. A most elaborate scenic investiture is promised while the wardrobe is said to be the most beautiful to be seen in a tabloid production.

David M. Wolf is the author of the book and lyrics, Don Bestor wrote the music, while Virgil Bennett staged the production and arranged the dances. "The Movie Kids" will be at the New Myers Theatre Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 16-17th.

IT COSTS TOO MUCH TO LIVE AND YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO DIE.

"K"

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

CHAPTER V.

"And so," K. Le Moyne, "you liked it all? It didn't startle you?"

"Well, in one way, of course—you see, I didn't know it was quite like that; all order and peace and quiet, and white beds and whispers, on top—you know what I mean—and the misery there just the same. Have you ever gone through a hospital?"

K. Le Moyne stretched out on the grass, his arms under his head. For this excursion to the end of the street car line he had donned a pair thought him too old for such frivolity of dress. It put him on his mettle.

"How old do you think I am, Miss Sidney?"

"Not over forty, I'm sure."

"I'm almost thirty. It is middle age, of course, but it is not senility."

Clearly the subject of his years did not interest her vitally, for she harked back to the grass stains.

"I'm afraid you're not saving, as you promised. Those are new clothes, aren't they?"

"No, indeed. Bought years ago in England—the coat in London, the trousers in Bath, on a motor tour. Cost something like twelve shillings. Awfully cheap. They wear them for cricket."

That was a wrong move, of course. Sidney must hear about England; and she marveled politely, in view of his poverty, about his being there. Poor K. Le Moyne floundered in a sea of monotony, rose to a truth here and there, clutched at luncheon, and achieved safety at last.

"To think," said Sidney, "that you have really been across the ocean! I never knew but one person who had been abroad. It is Dr. Max Wilson."

Back again to Doctor Max! K. Le Moyne, unpacking sandwiches from a basket, was aroused by a sheer resentment to indiscretion.

"You like this Wilson chap pretty well, don't you?"

"What do you mean?"

"You talk about him rather a lot."

This was sheer recklessness, of course. He expected fury, annihilation. He did not look up, but busied himself with the luncheon. When the silence grew oppressive, he ventured to glance toward her. She was leaning forward, her chin cupped in her palms, staring out over the valley that stretched at their feet.

"Don't speak to me for a minute or two," she said. "I'm thinking over what you have just said."

Down through the valley ran a shallow river, making noisy pretensions to both depth and fury. He remembered just such a river in the Tyrol, with this same Wilson on a rock, holding the hand of a pretty Austrian girl, while he snugged the shutter of a camera. He had that picture somewhere now; but the girl was dead, and, of the three, Wilson was the only one who had met life and vanquished it.

"I've known him all my life," Sidney said at last. "You're perfectly right about one thing: I talk about him and I think about him. I'm being candid, because what's the use of being friends if we're not frank? I admire him—you'd have to see him in the hospital, with everyone deferring to him and all that, to understand. And when you think of a man like that, who holds life and death in his hands, of course you rather thrill. I—I honestly believe that's all there is to it."

"If that's the whole thing, that's hardly a mad passion," he tried to smile, succeeded faintly.

"Well, of course, there's this, too. I know he'll never look at me. I'll be one of forty nurses; indeed, for three months I'll be only a probationer. He'll probably never even remember I'm in the hospital at all."

"I see. Then, if you thought he was in love with you, things would be different?"

"If I thought Dr. Max Wilson was in love with me," said Sidney solemnly, "I'd go out of my mind with joy."

To hide the shock with which he realized that she was, unknown to herself, already in the throes of a romantic attachment for Wilson, K. suggested a descent to the river. She accepted eagerly, and he helped her down. That was another memory that outlasted the day—her small warm hand in his; the time she slipped and he caught her; the pain in her eyes at one of his thoughtless remarks.

"I'm going to be pretty lonely," he said, when she had paused in the descent and was taking a stone out of her low shoe. "I shall have to come home at night." And then, seeing her wince: "I've been whining all day. For heaven's sake, don't look like that. If there's one sort of man I detest more than another, it's a man who is sorry for himself. Do you suppose your mother would object if we stayed out here at the hotel for supper? I've ordered a moon, orange-yellow and extra size."

"I should hate to have anything ordered and wasted."

"Then we'll stay."

"It's fearfully extravagant."

"It'll be thrifty as to moons while you are in the hospital."

So it was settled. And, as it happened, Sidney had to stay, anyhow. For, having perched herself out on the river on a sugar-loaf rock, she slid, slowly but with a dreadful inevitability, into the water. K. happened to be looking in another direction. So it occurred that at one moment Sidney sat on a rock, duffly white from head to feet, entrancingly pretty, and knowing it, and the next she was standing neck deep in water, much too startled to scream, and trying to be dignified under the rather trying circumstances. K. had not looked around. The splash had been a gentle one.

"If you will be good enough," said Sidney, with her chin well up, "to give me your hand or a pole or something—because if the river rises an inch I shall drown."

To his undying credit, K. Le Moyne did not laugh when he turned and saw her. He went out on the sugar-loaf, and lifted her bodily up its slippery sides. He had prodigious strength, in spite of his leanness.

"Well!" said Sidney, when they were both on the rock, carefully balanced.

"Are you cold?"

"Not a bit. But horribly unhappy. I must look a sight." Then, remembering her manners, as the Street had it, she said primly:

"Thank you for saving me."

"There wasn't any danger, really, unless—unless the river had risen."

And then, suddenly, he burst into delighted laughter, the first, perhaps, for months. He shook with it, struggled at the sight of her injured face to restrain it, achieved finally a degree of sobriety by fixing his eyes on the river bank.

"When you have quite finished," said Sidney severely, "perhaps you will take me to the hotel. I dare say I shall have to be washed and ironed."

He drew her cautiously to her feet. Her wet skirts clung to her; her shoes were sodden and heavy. She clung to him frantically, her eyes on the river below. With the touch of her hands the man's mirth died. He held her very carefully, very tenderly, as one holds something infinitely precious.

CHAPTER VI.

Operations were over for the afternoon. The last case had been wheeled out of the elevator. The pit of the operating room was in disorder—towels everywhere, tables of instruments, steaming sterilizers. Orderlies were going about, carrying out linens, emptying pans. At a table two nurses were cleaning instruments and putting them away in their glass cases. Irrigators were being emptied, sponges recounted and checked off on written lists.

In the midst of the confusion, Wilson stood giving last orders to the interne at his elbow. As he talked he scoured his hands and arms with a small brush; bits of lather flew off on to the tiled floor. His speech was incisive, vigorous. At the hospital they said his nerves were iron; there was no let-down after the day's work. The interne was worshiped and feared him. He was just, but without mercy. To be able to work like that, so certainly, with so sure a touch, and to look like a Greek god! Wilson's only rival, a gynecologist named O'Hara, got results, too; but he sweated and swore through his operations, was not too careful as to asepsis, and looked like a gorilla.

The day had been a hard one. The operating-room nurses were fagged. Two or three probationers had been sent to help clean up, and a senior nurse, Wilson's eyes caught the nurse's eyes as she passed him.

Dinner Stories

Sir Thomas Lipton is determined to win the American cup, and is making arrangements for the next race, planned for 1918.

When Sir Thomas was an industrious but far from wealthy young man in this country, he had an experience with a burglar. He was awakened one night by the consciousness that there was a stranger in the room.

"Who's that?" he demanded, sitting up in bed.

"Sh-h-h!" exclaimed the burglar. "Don't move or I'll shoot. I'm looking for money."

"Wait a minute," said Lipton calmly, "I'll get up and help you."

Wilkinson was near the exploding point when his neighbor met him in the street.

"That man Potter," he burst out, "has more cheek than anybody I ever met."

"Why, what has he done?" asked the neighbor.

"He came over to my house last night and borrowed a gun to kill a dog that kept him awake at night."

"Well, what of that?"

"What of that?" shouted Wilkinson. "It was my dog."

A girl, who had picked up a few French phrases brought them into her talk on every possible occasion. Entering a butcher's shop one day she inquired if he had any bonvivant.

"Boned what, madam?" asked the butcher, puzzled. "Bonvivant," she repeated. "That's French for good liver, you know!"

"I Haven't Promised to Marry Him."

of white flannel trousers and a belted Norfolk coat. Sidney had been divided between pride in his appearance and fear that the Street would deem him over-dressed.

At her question he closed his eyes, shutting out the peaceful arch of brows and the bit of blue heaven overhead. He did not reply at once.

"Good gracious, I believe he's asleep!" said Sidney.

But he opened his eyes and smiled at her.

"I've been around hospitals a little. I suppose now there is no question about your going?"

"The superintendent said I was young, but that any protegee of Doctor Wilson's would certainly be given a chance."

"It is hard work, night and day?"

"Do you think I am afraid of work?"

"And—Joe?"

Sidney colored vigorously and sat erect.

"He is very silly. He's taken all sorts of idiotic notions in his head. I haven't promised to marry him."

"But he thinks you mean to. If you have quite made up your mind not to, better tell him, don't you think? What—what are these idiotic notions?"

Sidney considered. "For one thing, he's jealous of you!"

"I see. Of course that is silly, although your attitude toward his suspicion is hardly flattering to me!"

He smiled up at her.

"I told him that I had asked you to bring me here today. He was furious. And that wasn't all."

"No?"

"He said I was flirting desperately with Doctor Wilson. You see, the day we went through the hospital, it was hot, and we went to Henderson's for soda water. And, of course, Joe was there. It was really dramatic."

K. Le Moyne was daily gaining the ability to see things from the angle of the Street. A month ago he could have seen no situation in two people, a man and a girl, drinking soda water together, even with a boy lover on the next stool. Now he could view things through Joe's tragic eyes. And there was more than that. All day he had noticed how inevitable the conversation turned to the young surgeon.

Sidney's active young brain, turned inward for the first time in her life, was still on herself.

"Mother is pliantly resigned—and Aunt Harriet has been a trump. She's going to keep her room. It's really up to you."

"To me?"

"To your staying on. Mother trusts you absolutely. I hope you noticed that you got one of the apostle spoons with the custard she sent up to you the other night. And she didn't object to this trip today. Of course, as she said herself, it isn't as if you were young, or at all wild."

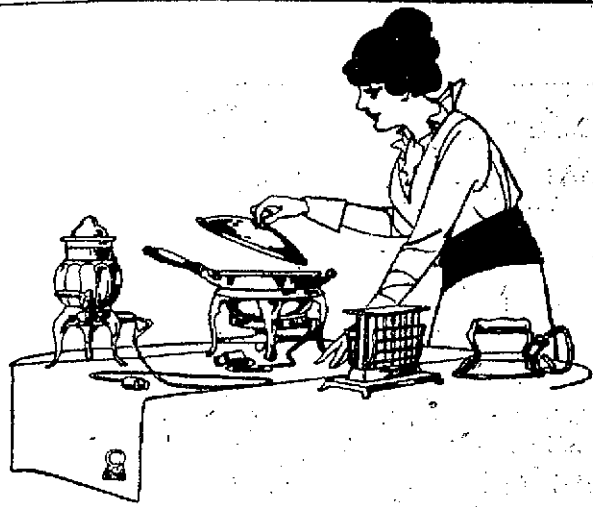

In spite of himself, K. was rather startled. He felt old enough. God knew, but he had always thought of it as an age of the spirit. He rose to his feet and threw back his fine shoulders.

"Aunt Harriet and your mother and Christine and her husband-to-be, whatever his name is—will be a happy family. But I warn you, if I ever hear of Christine's husband getting an apostle spoon—"

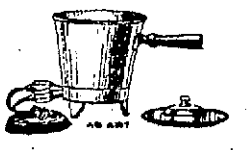

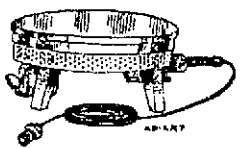

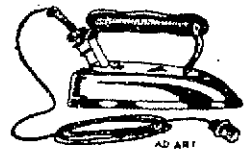

She smiled up at him. "You are looking very grand today. But you have grass stains on your white trousers. Perhaps Kattie can take them out."

On the sidewalk, K. felt that she

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS IS GIVEN MANY GIFTS

(JANESVILLE DAILY GAZETTE.)
Washington, Dec. 14.—Gifts from many sources have brought more than 25,000 volumes to the Library of Congress during the year, and comprised more than one-fourth of the additions to its shelves. Retaining its place as the third greatest library in the world, and the greatest in the western world, the library now contains 2,451,974 books, 154,209 maps and charts, 770,248 volumes and pieces of music and 302,906 prints.

For large additions to the Chinese, Japanese and Korean collections, the library acknowledges the gift to Dr. Walter F. Swingle of the Bureau of Plant Industry, who visited the Far East in 1915 and purchased on behalf of the library a total of 3,002 volumes, including early Chinese books printed from blocks; Chinese historical and descriptive works covering the period of first contact with Europeans; early Chinese dictionaries and encyclopedias; Chinese works on natural history and pharmacopoeias; geographical works; the writings of Confucius and the works of famous scholars; and a good copy of the oldest Japanese printed work extant, probably dating from the beginning of the thirteenth century; and a large collection of the writings of Kaibara, the Japanese Franklin of Japan.

The Lincoln documents which have been presented to the library are of exceptional interest. These consist of the original drafts of Lincoln's inaugural address, and his two drafts of the Gettysburg address, presented by Clarence L. May, who had them from his father, the late John May; and a memorandum as to the improbability of his reelection, presented by Miss Helen Nicolay.

As a rule the American composer and the American musician publisher are beginning to prefer the national to a local library as the permanent custodian of manuscript scores. The Chief Clerk of the Music Division regards not only the gifts of authors and composers, but promises of gifts to come.

In the Document Division an effort was made to complete the files of official publications of the Latin-American countries, and it was exceptionally fruitful through a visit to these countries by the Law Librarian, Dr. M. Borchard. The library's collection of Latin American documents may now be considered one of its important features.

A number of the two Debnard collections. The Yiddish literature in the United States assumes a respectable place as compared to other literatures. It will still offer a wide and interesting field for historians, philologists and students of comparative literature.

The portion of the library now classified under the new classification contains 1,648,000 volumes. Great progress has been made in eliminating remnants of the old classification. Practically all of the old chapters have now been reclassified, except such as contain works on religion and law.

Depository libraries containing complete sets of the Library of Congress catalog cards now number 48, while forty libraries of the United States government have partial depository sets.

Toppy Cottontail Has A Surprise

After Toppy Cottontail's fright about the scarecrow, which you remember he didn't know was a scarecrow and he slipped behind the shelter of a crow at all, he was a bit shy about going toward the garden.

"Of course, I know there are plenty of carrots there and cabbages that I would rather eat than anything else I know of; but dear me! what are cabbages compared to such a fright as I had? I guess I can get myself enough to eat without running into danger like that! I'll go in the other direction next time."

So the next morning, when he started out for his walk, he went toward the woods.

He walked quite a little way without seeing anybody. Little he stopped and listened.

Silence—silence—silence. You would have thought that there wasn't a creature within a mile, didn't jump! But perhaps Toppy didn't jump as quickly as you or I might, woods as quickly as you or I might, he got his ears used to the woods and then he began to hear things. Maybe you know how that is your self. You are so used to some kinds of noises that you, without knowing, listen only for those. Then if you wait, and keep on listening, you will soon get your ears to hearing other sounds that may be plain, only you didn't at first hear them because you didn't expect to.

That was the way with Toppy. He was still so frightened by that scarecrow that at first he only listened for the "flip-flop, flip-flop" that had frightened him in the garden, and he heard the crackle of leaves dropping from the frost-frosted trees. Then he heard the soft "pop" of dropping acorns. And then, when he listened longer, he heard footsteps.

"I guess I'd better hide till I see who, that is," thought Toppy, wisely, and he slipped behind the shelter of a great log.

But he had not long to hide, for

"Hello there, Billy!" cried Toppy.

he soon saw that the footsteps were made by none other than Billy Raccoon.

"Hello there, Billy!" cried Toppy, happily, "you're just the fellow I want to play with."

"Right there is where you are mistaken," said Billy Raccoon, slowly. "You don't want to play with me, I'm too fat to play. I'm almost ready to go to sleep for the winter." And before Toppy could get over his amazement, Billy Raccoon had ambled sleepily toward the log behind which Toppy had hidden himself, and had dozed off to sleep.

Says the Scientist:

"This is the Better Way to Buy Fresh OYSTERS!"

From the Sea to Your Table in Ice-Cold Germ-Proof Packages—Never in Bulk

At the seashore, oysters are practically all clean, pure and unadulterated. Even the most unsupervised oyster boat takes care of that. It is the bulk shipping methods of handling that impairs them.

But now comes the TRUPAKT system of individual packaging from the sea to your table sealed airtight. This makes it easy for anyone to get fresh oysters as clean, as wholesome and as flavorful as right at the inspected oyster beds.

The noted Dr. Allen, head of the Food and Drug Department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, is an expert on oysters. He advocated a system like TRUPAKT.

Even before we had perfected it, Dr. Allen said:

- FIRST—That oysters should be shipped to market promptly.
- SECOND—That they should be protected from all contamination, from exposure to germ-laden air in stores, from unclean dippers, dusty paper pails, etc.
- THIRD—That they should be kept at low temperature constantly.
- FOURTH—That it may be better to pack all oysters for the retail market in individual, sealed containers at the sea coast.

The TRUPAKT system masters all these things. It does away with all the objections of bulk shipped oysters. And it brings to your table the sea's most luscious food in a germ-proof package with the frosty freshness of the deep sealed inside.

TRUPAKT No-Bulk OYSTERS

From the Sea to Your Table in Germ-Proof Napacans (No-Metal) Overnight Shipments Always Pure Always On Ice

TRUPAKT Oysters are never shipped in bulk. They are freshly gathered from inspected seashore oyster beds, and quickly transferred from Nature's pearly-white oyster shell to this sterile, ivory-white container—the Napacan. We selected the Napacan for TRUPAKT Oysters because it contains no metal to rust or corrode. It is made of many layers of paper, pressed rigid and all pores sealed with paraffin. No other oysters come in Napacans. Once filled with TRUPAKT Oysters they are always kept on ice. Even in the stores these Napacans are in a special refrigerator made for the TRUPAKT System.

Eat heartily of TRUPAKT Oysters. Eat them often, cooked or raw. They are full of the live sea flavor—both delicious and wholesome.

Any authorized TRUPAKT dealer in the city can supply you—order a trial package today.

Small Family Size, 15c a Package Average Family Size, 30c

TRUPAKT, Inc., General Sales Office, MILWAUKEE
Oyster Packing Rooms at the Beds on the Sea Coast

NOTE: Trupakts are always shipped exclusively by fast express—never by freight. Most bulk oysters in this territory are shipped by slow freight to the jobbers.

By receiving Trupakt oysters exclusively by fast express we are able to get them to you from six to ten days fresher than most other oysters you can buy in this territory.

Practically all bulk shipped oysters contain 20 to 30 per cent. unknown hydrant water, added after the oysters are received at interior points; hence bulk shipped oysters are not as cheap as they seem when you consider that you are paying at the rate of $2 per 50 water is added to Trupakt oysters. They are packed solid meat, and are sealed right at the oyster beds in the same individual, sterile package you open in your kitchen. The package which sells for 30c contains from 30 to 33 oysters—enough for a family of from four to five people. They are just as cheap or cheaper than bulk shipped oysters sold at a less price per so-called pint.

AMERICAN PEOPLE WASTE TO EXTREME

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, Dec. 14.—Opening the tenth annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents here today, President J. H. Day of the Equitable Life Assurance Society sounded a warning against the extraordinary wastefulness of the American people.

"We rejoice that our people may now have many of the good things of life that were denied them in years gone by," he said, "but this nation cannot long wallow in luxuries and prodigality and endure. It is not a patriotic duty to join, so far as we consistently may, in an effort to assist in checking this destructive tendency."

"Life insurance officers are public servants in the highest sense of the term," said Mr. Day, "and their trust includes both the management of the insurance business and the savings of a vast army of people."

"I believe the time has come," he continued, "which we should be even more assertive in protecting life insurance interests and that we should give greater heed to the factors, public and private, that tend to jeopardize or injure these interests."

"As I see it, we cannot longer view with indifference the great American waste of extravagance. A well-traveled Hindu is reported to have said in recounting his impressions, that of all the lands he had visited, the United States is the only one where the inside of a slice of bread is eaten and the crust is thrown away. You know it used to be said that the average American home had an atmosphere of uncomplaining frugality in which the mental and moral attributes of our people were firmly knit and invigorated. It is not enough that we teach habits of thrift and saving by soliciting and selling life insurance protection, but an extra and permanent effort might profitably be made to check the extraordinary wastefulness of our people by individual and collective action. The prosperity of our nation necessarily interests us for with extravagance comes poverty and increases in policy borrowings and cash surrenders to numberless families. Extravagance not infrequently leads to excesses that result in ill-health, contributes to the physical deterioration of the race."

Should we not be more keenly concerned in the remedy for excessive life waste that is going on in this country? Does not our mission and position in the nation's life justify us in undertaking to conserve the lives of the insured and in searching for a consistent way to do so? Does not each head of a family have a right to expect an altruistic and patriotic purpose, but it is directly related to the reduction of the cost of insurance. The support of a family is a heavy burden, but not as fast as it should. The preservation of human life is the primary duty of civilization and we should do our part in it."

THEY LOOK LIKE SOLDIERS BUT MISSION IS SALVATION

Denver, Colo., Dec. 14.—They look like soldiers coming from the trenches where gas bombs have been falling in numbers. Masks, goggles and curious tanks on their backs add to the impression. But their mission is a mission of peace—their motto is "safety first."

They are students at the State School of Mines, Golden, Colo., where a fine school of new department of "Safety and efficiency engineering" the first school department of its kind to be established in the United States. The squad is under the leadership of J. R. Roberts who was for many years in charge of the government's mine-rescue car and he knows the horrors of the mine accident as well perhaps as any man in the country.

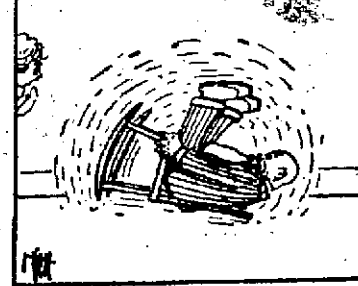

At the School of Mines he is turning out men equipped to organize the miners of the world into safety-first squads that will decrease the annual list of victims of mine accidents.

Any afternoon, at Golden, in the foothills, the safety class may be seen diving into the water, or a gas-filled boat, or a mission of rescue while the efficiency squad wait at the mouth with bandages and pulmotors and knowledge of first aid methods. All are doing practical work in rescuing.

MORRIS MILLER

Reports from Philadelphia has it that Manager Pat Moran of the Phillies will make the St. Louis Cardinals an offer for Jack Miller. It might be a good deal for the Phillies. Miller seems to need a change of scene very soon. He slumped with the Pilgrims, was traded to St. Louis and played grand ball for a couple of years. Last season he fell into slumpy ways again, indicating that another shift might be needed to wake him up. Some critics rise to remark that no player gets along with Miller Huggins more than so long which may or may not be Huggins' fault.

Charles Lange, brother of Bill Lange, one-time idol of Chicago fans, died at his home in Port Townsend, Wash., recently. Charles Lange was not famous like his brother Bill, but he had his place in baseball. For many years he was the backer and manager of an independent team in Port Townsend and it was on this team that Brother Bill as well as many other players afterward in professional ball got their preliminary training. The Port Townsend team probably hold a record for independent organizations in that for twenty years it never missed a season under one management.

The Western Association magnates and Solomon-like wisdom in deciding the ownership of the 1916 pennant. Deason won the first half of a split season, Tulsa and McAlester tied for the honors of the second half and could not agree on a play-off to settle the tie. Then Tulsa and Deason played a series. The league refused to recognize this series, but did give the pennant to Deason because for both halves of the season it had a higher percentage than any other club, though it finished third in the second half. There probably will be no more split seasons in the Western Association. Each time the plan has been tried there has been some sort of a scandal. Next year the league will have a real big league schedule of 154 games.

Greeley, heartless magnate again. No club ever got a worse throw down than Ray Caldwell gave the New York Yankees last year, when with the team crippled and barely able to put nine men in the field, he went off on a tear that landed him in a hospital a week or two months. The club suspended him without pay, but in the meantime said that his family was well cared for. It was the second time, too, that Caldwell had done some such trick. But now the owners of the Yankees have listened to Caldwell's plea of repentance and will give him another chance. However, though he broke his contract they have told him that it will be continued—$3,000 a season—provided he shows that his repentance is real. This really is a case that should encourage those Futz to renewed effort on behalf of the down-trodden player.

Stay south or move north seems to be an issue in the Southern league that grows more acute each year. It is illustrated this winter in the petition to take on Louisville and Knoxville while the entry into Evansville is again talked of as a possibility. It becomes more and more apparent that New Orleans and Mobile, at the extreme southern end of the circuit, must fight to retain their places in the league in time to come. Once

HE'LL RETIRE AFTER YEARS OF STARRING

George (Nap) Rucker.

Nap Rucker, the Brooklyn Dodgers' star southpaw, and one of the greatest pitching heroes of baseball, has seen his last days of action on the diamond and has announced his retirement from the business. It isn't likely that Nap will leave baseball entirely, however. He has been offered a scouting job by Charley Ebbetts, Brooklyn owner, and probably will accept it.

BILL CARRIGAN WILL BOSS RED SOX NEXT SEASON AND AT A FATTER WAGE

Bill Carrigan.

Bill Carrigan, who declared at the close of the baseball season that he was through with the game and would not return next season, seems to have wisely changed his mind. He will direct the Red Sox for the new owners, Frazee and Ward, at a salary reputed to be $20,000.

discarded they will have to look to other Gulf Coast cities for the formation of a new circuit, one that might have great possibilities, too, reaching from Pensacola on the east to Houston and Galveston, with Beaumont on the west. Such a circuit would be shaped like a shoe-string, but a past master at schedule making like Mike Finn could solve its problems.

An enterprising Peoria correspondent sent out a story that Joe Tinker came near drowning while out duck hunting in the Illinois river. Joe, according to the story, had gone down for the second time, when rescuers fished him out of the deep. Tinker returned to Chicago to say the story was all right except that the water was only hip deep where his boat was overturned and that, as he had on high-copped boots he didn't even get his feet wet. He admits, however, that the water was cold, what there was of it.

CHASE FOR LOST LOVES IS ARDENT IN WAR ZONE

London, Dec. 14.—"Cupid's Bureau" at the British war office is one of the war's unique and lively institutions. When love's dart stings the British "Tommy" temporarily or otherwise at one of his many ports of call in France or England, there's usually the girl he left behind him. "Tommy" is both as rapidly migrating and a most forgetful person, according to the officials who administer Cupid's department in the big stone building at Whitehall. His "last" girl is forever writing him letters and sending him packages which he probably receives but doesn't acknowledge. Then the girl writes to "Cupid" to find out what's happened to "Tommy." If "Cupid" answers that he is at present somewhere else and that his writing arm is in perfect condition the "last" girl probably knows that his ardor for her has cooled. Oftentimes, however, the "last" girl finds that she's still the "last" and finds her "Tommy" tucked away in some hospital bed or perhaps among the sterner casualties lists.

The War Office scrupulously observes every request for information. Word is immediately communicated to "Tommy's" regiment wherever it is to see if he is still in the land of the living.

One girl is looking for two "Tommys." An Irish girl pathetically asks only to know how "he's" getting along. A Cockney girl informed "Cupid's Bureau" that she has heard "anythink" about him for three months and she's ready to do "anythink" to find out "somethink" about him. It's the same old tangled problem every day at "Cupid's Bureau."

ROCK ISLAND REORGANIZATION UNDER WAY AT NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 14.—The first step in the reorganization of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway as recently provided for by several reorganization committees will be under way tomorrow—today being the last on which holders of stock and debentures who desire to participate may deposit their holdings.

The road went into receivership in April, 1915. The new plan, in addition to changing administration, makes provision for a cash requirement of $29,745,839. It provides for the purchase by stockholders of seven per cent preferred stock at par to the extent of forty per cent of their present holdings.

ISSUE LICENSES TO STATE "BABY FARMS"

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Dec. 14.—Licenses to maintain maternity or lying-in hospitals and homes for infants ("baby farms") are being issued this month for the year 1917, in accordance with a law of 1915 placing their control under the state board of health. About one hundred of these institutions are now under license. Applications for license must include the approval of the local health officer.

In most cases the maternity hospital is merely a ward in some general hospital or other institution, and in a few places the institutions are maternity hospitals of a high order. Indications at a number of places, however, show they are merely private homes operated for the care of a special class of cases, and require careful supervision to safeguard the health and lives of the inmates and the rights of the public.

Deputy state health officers are under instructions to make investigations of maternity hospitals and infants' homes in their territory and to report to Madison in detail. Especially are they expected to ascertain where the children go after leaving the institutions and the conditions surrounding their welfare.

The law requires all such institutions to admit health officers for purposes of inspection, to report all births to local health authorities within twenty-four hours, all arrivals of children at "baby-farms" within twenty-four hours thereof, and all departures within twenty-four hours of their removal, and also requires health officers to make frequent inspections. Such institutions are licensed without fee. No greater number of inmates may be housed than the license authorizes. For conducting such institutions without a license, the law permits a fine of not less than $100, or one year's imprisonment for a subsequent offense. Violation of any provision of the law is also severely punishable.

BELOIT CHICKEN SHOW OPENS TODAY; CLOSSES DEC. 20

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Beloit, Wis., Dec. 14.—Thoroughbred roosters, ducks, geese and other poultry were on exhibition here today at the annual show of the Beloit Poultry and Pet Stock association which will last until Dec. 20. Poultry fanciers declare it to be the biggest show staged in Wisconsin outside of Milwaukee.

The Wisconsin State Breeders' association will hold a convention there here evening. Many entries for the poultry show come from Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, South Dakota, and all parts of Wisconsin.

One of the features of the show will be a feather guessing contest for which a prize will be given to the best guesser on the closing night of the show. Judges who have been selected to place the awards are: George M. Wells, Oshkosh, and George W. Freedom, North Freedom.

At the End of Forty-Eight Hours.

"Papa certainly didn't manage this European trip very well. He said we'd be in Rome two days, but he made a mistake and it's three—and now we've seen everything, and there's absolutely nothing to do for a whole day."—Lippincott's.
